THE CHRONICLE, according to the usual custom, will not be delivered during holiday week, but it will be on hand promptly with the New Year.

To Subscribers.

As the year is drawing to a close, we request all subscribers to the CHRONICLE who are in arrears to pay their subscription. Most of them, no doubt, regard it as a small matter, and so it is to them, but the aggregate of the subscription due us is a considerable amount and it is very important to our business that it be promptly paid. We don't mean to complain of our patrons. The majority of them have been remarkably prompt in settling their dues, but "business is business" and we simply wish to suggest that this is the time of year to make settlements.

Next year will be pregnant of great political events. Besides the Presidential contest numerous state elections are to occur in which the public will be interested. The CHRONICLE will contain all the news of interest and give special prominence to these important political matters. No pains will be spared to make the paper a thorough compendium of information which will meet all the wants of subscribers. We are thankful for the liberal patronage that has been given us and hope to largely increase our subscription list before the end of the year.

We hope that the city ordinance against the fire-cracker nuisance, will be strictly enforced Christmas.

THE post-office will be closed next Tuesday, Christmas day, at 10 o'clock, a. m.

Quite a number of the students at the University will go home to spend the holidays.

THE banks will be closed on Tuesday next, all business falling due on that day must be attended to Monday.

It has required skill and no drinks for the average pedestrian to keep on his legs, a portion of this week.

MR. J. C. PACE and Miss Alice Barton of this county, were married by E. L. Brewer, Esq., on the 13th inst.

REV. MR. RODGER will hold divine services and preach at St. Andrew's Chapel (Episcopal) in South Clarksville, to-morrow.

THE city public schools closed Friday afternoon for the holidays, and will be re-opened Wednesday, January 2d.

Knights of Pythias.
The Grand Lodge of Tennessee, Knights of Pythias, will meet at Jackson on the second Tuesday in February, 1884.

THE citizen of ponderous proportions has been taking the middle of the street this week—not that he was so careful of his corporal welfare, but because he didn't want to injure the pavements.

Two mules hitched to a wagon backed off a ferry boat at Ashland on the 14th inst., and were drowned. They were the property of Mr. James Hunter of Dickson county. The wagon had not been recovered at last report.

THE steepest this week brought out the sleighs. The young people who engaged in the robust and merry sport enjoyed it and their hearts, no doubt.

"Keep time, time, time, in the hour of jubilee." To the tune of "The bells."

REV. EDGAR ORGAIN, Rector of Grace church, Memphis, died in that city on the morning of the 17th. He was a native of Fayette county in this State, and was about 35 years old. He had had charge of Grace church for several years and was appreciated for his ability and scholarly attainments. He was related to the family of the same name in this county.

MR. W. J. LYNES and Miss Eugenia Clark, daughter of Mr. E. M. Clark, were married at the residence of the bride's father, near Greenwood Avenue in this city, Tuesday night by Rev. T. L. Moody. Only the relatives and a few special friends of the happy couple were present at the ceremony. The bridegroom is a worthy and industrious young man and his bride is a lovely young lady.

THE ladies' lunch.
Remember the dinners given by the ladies of the Methodist church, the 21st and 24th at Alwell's store. Delicious oysters served in any style. Fine barbecues on Saturday, 22d. A beautiful quilt, donated by one of the most popular young ladies of Clarksville, to be sold at auction Saturday 23d, at 8 o'clock.

Ex-Sheriff J. H. Achey has presented us with some papers that we are glad to keep on account of their venerable age. One is a copy of the "Religious and Literary Intelligencer," of Princeton, Ky., dated July 21st, 1831. Immediately above the date line is printed in large letters, "Edited and Published by Rev. David Lowry—A. Brock, Printer." It is a four column folio paper, the measure being much wider than that now generally adopted. The matter in the paper is mostly of a religious nature. A long report of "The Hopkinsville Temperance Society" is published by request. We don't find in it any mention of the Clarksville and Princeton railroad.

The other is a copy of the "Nashville Union," published Jan. 7th, 1840—that memorable year of the canvass between Harrison and Van Buren. The Union then was a very staunch Democratic paper, as its lineal descendant, the American, is to-day. It floated at its mast head the names of Martin Van Buren and James K. Polk for the presidency and vice-presidency, and a rather curious fact, in the light of the present, was engaged in a hot quarrel with the Louisville Journal. The editor was Mr. J. George Harris, who was only a few years ago an honorary member of the Tennessee Press Association and may be living yet. He was a good writer, but a very poor prophet. He didn't think it worth while to turn his heavy artillery loose on Gen. Harrison, "because the newspapers are ridiculing his nomination at such an extravagant price that he felt it exceedingly difficult to treat the matter with becoming soberness." One strange assertion in the light of subsequent events is the following: "Abolitionism in New England have dwindled away into a party so inconceivable and of such questionable character that the candidates who are so unfortunate as to be known before the election to be its favorites are sure to be defeated by the people." Another paragraph states a list of names as fed glad that the abolition party was finally triumphant. It says: "The holiday week has just closed, and we venture to say that not a slave in Nashville has been required to lift his hand to work by his master since it commenced. All have been at play, while a majority of their owners have been running hither and thither, perplexed almost to death to negotiate paper, to collect bills, or contrive some way to turn their property in such a manner as may enable them to meet their current obligations."

Death of John S. Neblett.
Mrs. P. M. Neblett, wife of Mr. John S. Neblett and daughter of the late Col. M. G. Gibson, died at her home on the Paradise Hill pike, Monday morning at 1 o'clock, aged 34 years. The cause of her death was consumption, from which disease she had suffered an unusually long time. The remains were interred at the family burying ground on the south side of the river, Tuesday, with services by Rev. P. A. Fitts. The deceased was a lady of many excellent qualities and her death will be regretted by a large number of friends. She was the last, but one, of a large family who have nearly all been victims to the fatal malady that carried her off. Her own life was undoubtedly protracted by a determined will and a strong desire to live for those she loved. The bereaved husband, who has lost the woman on whom he lavished so much fondness and who was so long the object of his solicitude, has much sympathy for his sorrow. Besides him, a host of kind and numerous relatives mourn her loss.

A correspondent from McCallister's X Roads sent us a communication that got in too late for our last week's issue, and the news it contains is now too old for publication. He reports that the corn crop in that section is about all gathered and that the yield has been better than was anticipated. He asks why it is that farmers on McAdow creek get 10 cents for their tobacco while those of his section get much lower figures. He admits that the land on McAdow creek is better adapted to tobacco culture and makes a finer quality of the weed than that in the vicinity of McCallisters, but don't think this justifies so great a difference in prices. This is a conundrum that we can't attempt to answer unless we can get better acquainted with the facts in the case. Maybe the McAdow farmers handle their tobacco with more care, cure it better and don't rush it to market too soon.

Centenary Services.
We, the Centenary committee of the Clarksville District, Tennessee Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, request that the first Sabbath in January, 1884, be observed throughout the church as a day of devout prayer for the divine blessings upon the Centenary services of the year, and for a general revival of religion, and that on that day our preachers explain the motive and objects of the Centenary celebration, and especially urge adherence to those doctrines and usages of early methodism that have continued under God to her spiritual power.

JAS. A. ORMAN,
T. L. MOODY,
B. W. MACRAE.

Mr. James Winfrey, a substantial and popular young merchant of Hopkinsville, was married to Miss Belle Snyder, daughter of Mr. W. A. Snyder, at the Methodist church at Alwellville, Ky., on the 20th inst., Rev. Mr. Keen performing the ceremony. It was a very happy wedding and one of those felicitous events on which the CHRONICLE takes pleasure in extending its congratulations.

We are authorized to announce Mr. Thomas H. Hyman as a candidate for re-election for Alderman of the 3rd ward. Mr. Hyman has served several terms on the board and has fully demonstrated his fitness for such a position. He is both popular and capable and will no doubt be again triumphantly installed in his accustomed place among the city fathers.

Letter from Mrs. Sue F. Mooney.
To the Chronicle:
A busy and rather gloomy day has drawn to a close. A bright wood-fire is suggestive of comfort, and this comfort is increased by a supply of choice reading matter. And first to be read always the home papers—the CHRONICLE and the Tobacco Leaf. I read them with ten-fold the interest I did when I lived in Clarksville, although I have given but few tokens of such interest. The fear that a letter from Williamson county would have no special attraction for your readers has sometimes deterred me from writing. Again, confinement in the school-room has left me but little leisure for corresponding. So much by way of explanation.

I have just read Bro. Callum's contribution to the Letter-Box. I can't say with him that "this friends" has manifested any special zeal in working for the very attractive prize offered by Mr. Stratton. The truth is, "gold dollars" have a remarkable facility for escaping me. I once set out, confident that I would reach the bag of gold at the end of the rainbow. Just as I thought it within grasp, the bow of promise vanished! I did have one little bag of gold which I kept during all the dark days of the war, only to have it taken by burglars when the war was over.

By the way, your picture of the dead burglar and the description of the fight at Mr. Garrott's kept me awake for several nights, hearing stealthy steps in every slight noise in and about the house. The poet says:

"The shadow of some danger is ever near,
But a 'palpable presence'—seen and felt,
Like that at Mr. Garrott's,
Would leave no life in use. But to a more tempting theme—the Clarksville Christmas goods. Saturday night, I think it was, I read Crusman's advertisement of good things for Christmas, and though the hour was late, I became so hungry that I went to the cupboard. It was the season of sausage, backbone, etc., so appetite was appeased—for the rest I had to content myself with a Barmecidean Feast.

I fancy I can see the beautiful things at Cooke's, and at Owen & Moore's, though my good husband tells me that they exceed their former displays. Little Maud rejoices in a lovely Christmas card from Mr. Moore, her first Sunday school teacher. The gratification arises not so much from the possession of the token, as from the thought that she is so kindly remembered.

Now, I am afraid I shall get homesick before I finish this letter, for as I write friend after friend passes in mental review. One of the children asked the other day, "Of all the people in Clarksville, whom do you like best?" I tried to answer, but it was like upon the poor man to get such a question. "I can't," I said, "I love them all best." I tried for a long time to keep up with the members of our old Reading Club, surely "a choicer, not a godlier there never was"—but you and the Leaf failed to give programmes, and so I ended my quest.

Dear Mrs. Rice was the first to leave us for that journey whence she shall not return. She was a good member. Her sweet songs, and beautiful flowers reflected her even yet. She has gone.

"To that land whose light is never dimmed
By shade,
Whose fields are ever vernal,
Where nothing beautiful can ever fade,
But bloom as ever—eternal."

Hon. Rufus Rhodes (I see from last CHRONICLE) has moved to Chicago, and in one short year the familiar faces are widely scattered. "The whole Round Table is dissolved," but the feeling of fellowship will remain. We have a good Club here. Our meeting last Friday night was well attended, four teachers were present besides the writer. Rev. Mr. McPherson, Cumberland Presbyterian, gave a live speech on Phonetics. Miss Annie Owen read an Historical Essay on "Wednesday," showing why 'd' is retained in spelling. At least four young gentlemen and about the same number of young ladies read or recited. The exercises were pleasantly relieved by music, vocal and instrumental, furnished by Mrs. Beck, wife of Prof. W. W. Beck, Mr. McPherson and Miss Blanche Cluck.

Prof. Beck is pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in this place. His wife has a class in music. She will give a Class Entertainment on Thursday night consisting of Music, Mother Goose and other attractions.

Clarksville has a representative here in Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and Alumnus of the Southwestern Presbyterian University and a member of Washington Irving Literary Society. I am delighted to hear of the continued prosperity of the University and that its noble Chancellor has been restored to health. Through the courtesy of Mr. W. D. Hatcher, of this place, I was favored with a copy of the paper published by W. L. L. S. Like Pat, "I am partial to both societies, but am obliged to like my own best." Success to you. I am sorry to miss the "Intermediate Orations," though the speakers this year are unknown to me.

Our village school is nearing its close, and I am sharing in the general desire for a holiday. Christmas signs are seen in the heavily laden wagons going to and returning from the city. This is a good country for the farmer, he can sell everything he has to spare.

The sound of the horn is heard, the baying of dogs, and to-day the almost constant crack of the rifle. There are some noble young men in this county. Some of them are members of my Sunday school class, the Reading Club—and, as a substantial sign that they are good and generous, I am not forgotten in the distribution of the game bags.

I always associate the CHRONICLE with Mr. Wright. I have seen nothing from his pen in a long time. I would like to hear from him on the Franco-Chinese War.

Mr. Mooney was delighted with his late visit to Clarksville. I felt almost as if I had made the visit myself and enjoyed the hospitality of your generous people. I should love to see mine host of the Franklin House and his good wife in their new home, one of the best houses in this county. I am not a traveler, but on this line I shall find a limit, so to you and your friends. Mrs. SUE.

OUR ADVERTISERS.
For the benefit of our readers who wish to know where to purchase their Christmas goods we publish the following notices of those houses advertising in the CHRONICLE that are likely to have such goods to sell.
Crusman & Howard are not so largely represented in the CHRONICLE this week as they were last week, but they have a very interesting advertisement in this issue which our patrons will do well to read.
If you need anything in the millinery line to wear or make a present of Mrs. Hodgson & Maguire can furnish it.
There are many articles of furniture that will make a splendid Christmas present. Go to G. M. Whiteside & Co.'s and you will be able to find something there to your taste.
Of all other places a jewelry store is the place to get real handsome Christmas presents. Mr. Cooke says you must call on him before purchasing elsewhere.
Mr. D. S. Hendrick still keeps standing his generous offer to give his patrons $100 worth of elegant china goods on the 1st proximo. It would be well enough to remark in passing, that a china store is the place par excellence to buy Christmas presents, and if you buy anything from Hendrick's, you stand a chance to get his splendid New Year's gift.
Christmas would be no Christmas without good things to eat. Read the advertisement of those popular grocers, Keesee & Northington, in this issue, and you will know where to get your oranges, figs, currants, &c.
The confectioner is the biggest man in the world Christmas, and you may construe that remark as applying to our own confectioner, Mr. E. B. Ely, if you choose. Read his advertisement in another column.
The hardware man comes in for his share of the glory Christmas. We will venture to say that many things can be found in the large establishment of Messrs. F. C. Smith, that will make the very nicest kind of presents. Try them.
These remarks apply with equal force to Mr. J. F. Wood who has a very complete stock of hardware, queensware, tinware, &c. at his store, 55 Franklin street. It would be well enough to try him too.
Under this head Messrs. Kincannon, Son & Co., also come in for a share of our attention. They have a very attractive advertisement elsewhere that everybody should read. Pay them a visit in your search for Christmas goods.
Mr. Joseph Witzel, an accomplished Knight of St. Crispin, has moved his shop to the room under the CHRONICLE office, where he will be glad to see all of his friends and the public generally. He is a first-class boot and shoe maker, and his work gives satisfaction to his patrons. Read his advertisement in another column.
If you need a new overcoat now is the time to buy it. Pitman & Lewis began on the 17th inst. to sell a lot of such goods as they have on hand at cost. They have something to say to the public in this regard elsewhere.

Messrs. Lockert & Reynolds want you to buy your Christmas goods from them, and we take pleasure in assuring the public that they have a large and attractive display of everything in that line. You must at least go to see Lockert & Reynolds before purchasing elsewhere.

Don't fail to read the attractive advertisement of R. S. Broadbent, Agt. He has recently removed to Roach's old stand, next door to Coulter Bros., and has replenished and enlarged his stock of dry goods, shoes and hats, which he is offering to sell at the lowest prices. He has a great quantity of goods suitable for Christmas presents, and those who wish to purchase such things should not fail to inspect his stock.

The cold and snowy weather that generally prevails about Christmas time makes it necessary that everybody should be well shod. Messrs. Bowling & Wilson have a large and well selected stock of boots and shoes, from which you can supply yourself. That is also the place to get your Christmas hat.

Mr. Stratton will make some of the boys and girls happy New Year with the present of a number of gold dollars, and in the meantime will be glad to have them call on him for their Christmas goods. Very nice Christmas presents can be selected from his stock of furnishing goods.

The old and reliable house of Bloch Bros. has an attractive card on the first page of this paper. That firm is always up to the times Christmas, and now have a great variety of nice goods.

You can't fail to see the column advertisement of Coulter Bros. on the first page. Read it carefully and you will find something in it to your advantage. It means all it says.

Some very handsome Christmas goods will be found at Stewart's drug store. Go round and take a look at them.

A Distinguishing Accident.
This city was very much shocked to learn of the death, by burning of Mrs. Louisa Tompkins, wife of the late Robt. Tompkins. She was a very old lady, who had resided in Clarksville for a number of years, and was highly regarded by all who knew her. She lived in the Southern part of the city on High street, and Miss Sallie Allison was her companion. Miss Allison left the room for a few moments Wednesday morning, when by some accident, the old lady's clothing caught fire. She only got out a few moments, and on returning, quickly extinguished the fire, but not in time to save the unfortunate old lady's life. Mrs. Tompkins died on the following day, after eighteen hours of excruciating agony. The deceased was the mother of Mrs. Allen Johnson, Mrs. Greenfield, Mrs. Quarles and five sons.

HEADQUARTERS POLICE DEPARTMENT,
CLARKSVILLE, NOV. 23, 1883.
Messrs. Neblett & Titus, Clarksville, Tenn.:
GENTS—Replying to your inquiry of 30th inst., would say that I have had the picture referred to shown to our detectives, and is not recognized as any one known at Clarksville. Respectfully,
M. F. KELLY,
Supt. of Police.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of Wednesday says:
Mr. Bennett, who lives at No. 127 West Fifth street, called at the Chief's office yesterday and identified the portrait of the burglar shot and killed at Clarksville, Tenn., last week. He says it is Sam Patterson, who formerly worked on the Grand Central Depot, and who started about a month with two companions several weeks ago.

PERSONAL.
Mrs. Dr. McCauley is visiting her mother and sister in Selma, Ala.

Miss Mary Macrae has returned from a delightful visit to Memphis.

Mr. Walter McComb, of Nashville, was in the city the first of the week.

Miss Matt Moore, of the Southside, has returned from her visit to Springfield and Nashville.

Misses Pearl Parham, Evie Orman and Lizzie Moseley, all of Dr. Priece's school at Nashville, will spend the holidays in this city.

Mrs. J. A. Orman and little daughter arrived Tuesday night, and are comfortably domiciled at the Methodist parsonage.

Miss Janie Broadbent of this city, attended the Winfrey-Snyder marriage at Allensville, Ky., Wednesday.

Mrs. Frank Phillips and children left Nashville last week to join her husband at Pensacola, Florida. We wish them all prosperity and happiness.

Mr. W. H. Gunn and Fagan Powers of this county, left Tuesday for Texas, where they expect to locate permanently.

Mr. Will Hutchison, late of Uncle Sam's Army, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Munford, of New Providence.

Messrs. Ross, Robbins & Co., paper dealers of Cincinnati, have put us under obligations for a very nice chromo-calendar for 1884. The picture represents a courtship scene between a very cavalier-like young officer, and the other essential to such a scene, a very pretty girl. The calendar is as ornamental as it is useful, and the donors have our sincere thanks.

The second number of "The Record," the spirited little monthly published by the Stewart Literary Society of the University, has made its appearance. It is a very creditable paper and deserves the success with which it is meeting. The young editors seem to have their hearts in the work and are putting forth their full endeavors to make the publication readable and interesting.

A RARE CHANCE LIKE THIS.
Wonderful Cases Performed Daily by these Great Surgeons of Europe.

People who want to consult them must call at once, as they are now at the Franklin House, Clarksville, where they will remain until the evening of December 26th. Don't forget the date.

WOMAN AND HER DISEASES.
All diseases of a private nature treated at the lowest prices. Blood and skin eruptions, heart, brain, nerves, cancers, tumors, piles, hernia, fistula, deformities, stiff joints, club feet, hunch back, bow legs, impotency, loss of manhood, eye, ear, throat and lung diseases. Permanently cured by calling on these expert surgeons, now at the Franklin House.

"Monopolists."
Monsieur Anselme.
Over $20,000,000 has been invested in the coal and iron district around Birmingham, Ala. The city has a population of 16,000 and is the seat of many manufacturing centers in the South growing more or less. And the men who are building up these home markets at the doors of the Southern farmers are "monopolists" who must be crushed out.
